

1888 VICTORIA HALL Albion Square, Hanley.
#####

Built in 1888, it was refurbished in 1998 and is now run alongside the Regent Theatre (See 1999) by The Ambassador Theatre Group. (1580 Seats)

The Hall was opened to commemorate the Golden Jubilee of Queen Victoria. It has played host to numerous big named stars like Paul Robeson, Richard Tauber, Beniamino Gigli and Hayley Westenra. The composer Rachmaninoff is also said to have appeared at the hall, as have the Halle orchestra conducted by Sir John Barbirolli and the London Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Dr Malcolm Sargeant.

The 1938-9 season had Rafael Kubelik, Raul Robeson, Richard Tauber, Michael Hambourg, Raya Garbousova, Beniamino Gigli, Lina Pagliughi and Edward Kilenyi with the season directed by Harold Holt.

The famous brass band conductor Fred Mortimer made his debut with the Foden's Brass Band at the Victoria Hall, Hanley on the 11 January 1925 along with the Potteries Choral Society followed two weeks later with a concert at SandbachTown Hall.

The local entertainer Sam Bass who impersonated George Formby played various halls in the area but on the 28 February 1954, he was unable to attend a concert at Leek because of the blizzard that had closed all the roads to the town. George Formby was playing that night at the Victoria Hall in Hanley and Sam decided to go to see him, taking with him two-ukulele banjos that he hoped George would sign. He managed to get to see his idol despite a crowd of people outside asking for George to do an impromptu concert after the main show. Sam was invited in to see George by his wife Beryl and the two had a nice chat.
